AKHILA'S STORY

Akhila found love and support in an orphan home you fund!

This year you have changed lives. That is not hyperbole...you truly have. Let these few pages tell you the stories of the children whose futures have a new and hope-filled trajectory because of you! Akhila is just one of those children.

She is a beautiful young woman who grew up in India. Her mother and father both died of health issues. She has no siblings to share life with.

She moved into an FCW-sponsored home where she learned about Jesus, but her family members were not supportive of her new belief. She remains persistent in her new faith and finds encouragement and love in her new home.

Akhila is currently studying to get an advanced degree in Business Administration.

"You have to take one step and then God will take your life for ten thousand steps." - Akhila, Age 21 pounds of clothing were sorted, packed and shipped to India. That will clothe approximately 54,000 children!

54,110

Girl Empowerment Programs Launched in India

Two separate programs were launched this year in India which will train young girls to become empowered women.

This is vital in a culture where girls are often married off at young ages or fall prey to prostitution and trafficking.

Girls in these programs are taught about dignity, legal rights, self-defense and about a God who values them deeply.

These programs have the potential to reach hundreds of girls!
